FULL SHEETS OF ISRAEL UNCUT CURRENCY DISCOVERED

This months discovery was obtained from Israel and this is the first of these attractive full uncut sheets of the David Ben-Gurion 50 Sheqalim notes which we have seen. Each sheet contains 12 of the notes in crisp original uncirculated condition. The sheets have been placed into protective tubes as issued by Israel to insure and preserve their condition. Listed in Picks Standard Catalog of World Paper Money, the individual notes are catalogued as P-46 and while not even being listed in the catalogue these sheets have a combined catalogue value for just the notes at $60.00. We made a great buy and want to pass it on to all of our collectors for just $17.50.

ORDER NO. 01-001

Yemen has been in the news recently with the coup in South Yemen and Queen Elizabeth's royal yacht evacuating foreign personnel to DJIBOUTI across the Persian Gulf. This strategic country has (or had) 4 parts: Yemen, Yemen Republic, Yemen Kingdom and People's Democratic Republic of South Yemen (which just had the revolution). Many of the stamp issues of these countries are little known in the West; what with having been issued in limited quantities for propoganda purposes. Some of you may have heard of Bruce Condi, philatelic advisor to the King of Yemen. He was instrumental in having many issues produced and sent to the west. These stamps are generally quite colorful and topical in nature.

The following special contains all mint stamps (F/VF - OG/LH) (no CTO items) which tend to be quite difficult to locate. All are quite limited (many are one of a kind) in stock. Alternates would be recommended.

SILVER STATERS OF CORINTH AND ITS COLONIES

400-243 B.C.

The city of Corinth occupied one of the most strategic locations in the eastern Mediterranean. Its fortifications commanded the road from the Peloponnese to the Greek mainland and it stood astride the very narrow isthmus separating the Ionian and Aegean Seas. In ancient times, ships were dragged across this narrow strip of land on rollers and Corinth became a natural market place for merchants and travellers from all parts of the ancient world. Corinth was an important manufacturing center and soon developed into a formidable naval power as well, founding numerous colonies in various parts of the Mediterranean.

For several centuries Corinth produced large quantities of silver staters. They were uniform in their quality and basic design and were one of the most widely-accepted international coins of their day.

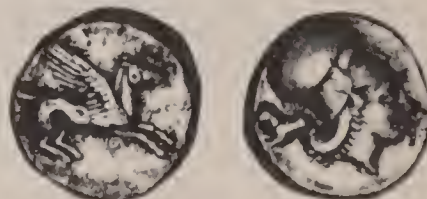

Pegasus is depicted on the obverse of the stater, usually with a letter below to indicate the Corinthian city of origin. The reverse shows a helmeted head of Athena, often with various smaller symbols referring to elliances, games or other events.

We are pleased to offer a fine collection of silver staters from Corinth and its colonies, which took many decades to assemble. Each coin bears different symbols, which cover many of the major and minor varieties of this series. Individually, each coin is a handsome and significant addition to any fine collection. All together they present a panorama of this era of Greek coinage.

Catalogue numbers are according to O.E. Ravel's work: Les Pouleins de Corinth.

THE MINTS OF ALEXANDER THE GREAT

From 336 to 323 B.C. Alexander the Great conquered most of the known ancient world. Throughout his vast empire he established mints, which issued a uniform series of drachms and tetradrachms. These coins bear the portrait head of Herakles wearing a lion skin on the obverse and a seated figure of Zeus on the reverse.

The coinage of Alexander was so highly respected as an international currency, that the basic coin type, with and without his name, continued to be issued at Greek mints long after his death.

We are pleased to offer Part I of a large collection of Alexander the Great tetradrachms. All of the coins have different mint marks and cover a broad spectrum of style, fabric and time of issue. Many mint marks correspond to basic coin types of earlier periods. Some of the Herakles portraits appear to be Alexander himself, while others bear a strong resemblance to local rulers who were successors to various parts of Alexander's empire.

This presents an unusual opportunity for both the beginner and the specialized collector to acquire either single specimens or a wide variety of mint marks and variations of style from this impressive and popular area of ancient Greek coinage.

Description for the following coins:

COB COINAGE

The term "cob" derives from the Spanish "Cabo de barra," which translates as "end of the bar" or "cut from a bar," and relates to the crude coins issued in the Spanish colonies of the New World from approximately 1580 to 1732. Cobs were made by slicing planchets from the end of crudely cast bars of refined bullion, after which the planchets were clipped to the requisite weight, heated, and hand-hammered between crudely engraved dies. The rough surface and irregular circumference of the planchets all but insured obverse and reverse impressions strong at the high surface points and weak or missing at others, and legends either missing or running off the coin when they do show. The only coin legend of importance to Spanish authority was the assayers' initials which guaranteed the fineness of the bullion. Every effort was made to impress them in the cob (and other coins) as the penalty for not doing so was quite severe. Gold and silver were valued much the same throughout most of the world during the era of full-value bullion coinage; the only coin characteristics of universal significance were the weight and percentage of pure metal a coin (which was actually a bullion ingot) contained.

The Wrecking of the Johanna in 1682

Soon after the second Anglo-Dutch War, 1665-1667 first mention was made of the Johanna in 1671 when under the captain Hopefar Bendall she made a voyage lasting one year around the Bay of Biscay.

She was a big ship of her time with only the great warships like the Duke of Yorks flagship, the Royal Charles, 1665 tons and the Roayl Oak, 1021 tons all mounting 80 and more heavy cannons. The Johanna was a 500 ton ship, 3 decks high and mounting 36 heavy cannons. She was a race built ship, a term derived from the French word RAS, meaning shaven or flat, and had fine lines with little superstructure. She was built in a period when there was an English maritime consolidation just after the humiliating defeat by the hands of the Dutch when they sailed right up the mouths of the Thames and Medway rivers and caused so much destruction of the English warships.

The first mention of her going to the far east was in 1673 when under captain Bendall she sailed to St. Helena and Bantam in the Spice Islands. She made another trip to the east in 1679 travelling to Surat before her last and fateful voyage.

This voyage was the first for captain Robert Brown when he left the Downs, east of Kent and sheltered by the Goodwin Sands, on the 24th February 1682. She was destined to Surat on the west coast of India where the English held a shaky alliance with the Dutch to trade jointly after the Portuguese were ousted by the English in 1612.

The Johanna left the Downs in the accompany of four other English ships, the Williamson, Nathaniel, Welvaart and Samson, all except for the Johanna were bound for Bengal.

The Johanna and the Welvaart approached the southern most tip of Africa, Cape Agulhas in the early hours of the morning on the 29th May 1682. There was a shift of wind from south east to east south east and there were heavy cross winds.

The Johanna changed course slightly and ran into one of the most dangerous areas of the South African coast. She struck hard and fast and almost immediately started breaking up. The Welvaart also nearly met her fate that night but was able to throw anchor and wait the few hours till morning and escape the jaws of the rocky South African coast. The Welvaart did not stop and attempt to save the crew of the Johanna.

It was a hopeless situation for the Johanna. She was virtually surrounded by jagged reefs and she was breaking up fast. The crew were able to make rafts and slowly crossed the one dilometer stretch of water to shore. Ten men did not make it.

The survivors, totally destitute started the long trek westwards to the Cape Town castle. They were shown the way and helped along by friendly natives, who according to the English statement had they not helped, the English would have certainly perished.

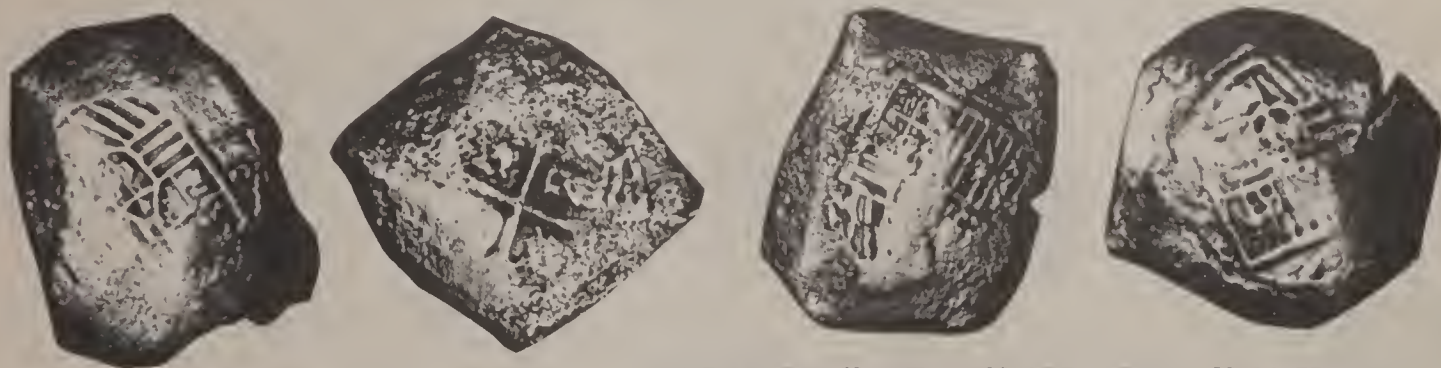

The first survivors arrived at the castle late in the evening on the 18th June and told the terrifying story of the wrecking of the Johanna.

More and more men arrived at the castle when on the 27th June 104 men had survived the ordeal.

Simon van de Stell was eager to learn about the Johanna and got a commitment from the captain saying that the wreck was a total write off and because of the difficult terrain and high mountains it was not possible to do any salvage on the Johanna. Simon van der Stell had heard that she was carrying a valuable cargo and he was now anxious to repatriate the survivors as soon as possible. Unbeknown to Captain Brown, van der Stell had already dispatched engin Olaf Bergh to the wreck site in a cloud of secrecy on the 22nd June. Van der Stell managed to get most of the survivors on 3 ships bound for Batavia on the 8th July, exactly one month after the wrecking.

Before the survivors left for Batavia, van der Stell had already received a despatch from Olaf Bergh at the wreck site.

THE LEGENDARY SPANISH

PIECE OF EIGHT

First Salvage Attempt

Four men under the command of ensign Bergh took 8 days to get to the wreck site. The men whose names were Aernout Calcoen, Christoffel Henningh, Jurgen Klingh and Olaf Bergh found that she had broken to pieces on the rocks. After having walked along the beach they found the following articles that had been washed up: 20 mum pipes; 1 cask wine; 2 casks ships beer; 26 casks tar and pitch; 1 copper cooks kettle; 80 bottles of wine and brandy and a broken empty money chest lying on the beach.

Bergh requested van der Stell to send one of the English survivors to show them where the hull had struck [waar de bodem was gebleven] so they they could get the specie out of her. A small section of the afterpart was sticking on a rock and as the sloop from the Joanna was badly damaged they had to repair it before they could sail out to it.

On the 1st July Bergh burried 4 corpses that they found lying on the beach and these graves must represent the first English graves in South Africa.

They continued looking for more washed up wreckage during low tide and managed to find among the rocks 613 reales. Then on the morning of the 6th July they again set out and to their astonishment found a chest lying between the rocks. The chest, a very poor looking chest, was kept together with iron hoops and the cover was attached by copper wire. The whole thing was about to fall apart and certainly would not have lasted another high tide. When they opened it they found 15 bags of Spanish dollars. Over the next couple of days they found 1 ships metal bell, weighing 40 lbs, 1 iron anvil, 4 broken tin dishes and 3 iron cannons, 2-12 and 1-8 pounder that were still under water, but with the sufficient force of men could easily be raised. Also 1 anchor, 1 small copper mortar and pestle and various ropes and blocks.

Olaf Bergh asked if a carpenter with all his tools be sent to the site to enable them to repair the sloop. Simon van der Stell also offered to send a native diver, by the name of Pay Minah to dive amongst the wreckage. There is no record of this diver being successful amongst Berghs journals but a reference was made by Bergh in 1686 whilst salvaging the Nostra Signora de los Milagros that Pay Minah was very successful.

Simon van der Stell despatched 2 ships mates to the site to familiarise themselves with the area and sent them out again in the Jupiter with the instructions that they are to proceede with the first favourable wings to the spot where the English ship as wrecked and to collect the salvaged material.

The mate of the Jupiter, Reynier Dadel set sail on the 12th August and on the evening of the 15th they approached the low west point where the Johanna was wrecked slightly to the east [Quoin Point]. He then sailed behind the surf eastwards when they saw a fire burning and guessed it to be the Berghs camp. They sailed a bit further until they came to a large reef and they then concluded that they were near about the spot which they had in their thoughts. Remembering the instructions given by van der Stell to proceede to the spot and having come to a large reef and they then concluded that they were near about the most important information given in the journals that aided the rediscovery of the Johanna.

The Jupiter could not find any suitable anchorage in the area and the following day she proceeded southwards and rounded cape Agulhas and found excellent anchorage in Struys Bay. The mate did extensive soundings of the bay and this was the first survey done of the bay.

Olaf Bergh transmitted the salvaged goods overland to Struys Bay and on the 7th September, nearly 3 months after he arrived at the Johanna site he left for Cape Town.

The total value of the goods salvaged by Bergh amounted to 28302 guilden and included 2000 pirilase reales, 7400 mexican reales, and 34 reales. Altogether a very successfull expedition and in the resolutions of Council of Policy Bergh and his men were honored. Bergh received Rds100 and a mum pipe [brunswick beer], the other 3 men received 100 guilden each and the person who found the money chest Rds12. This was a reward for the vigilance they displayed. Another expedition was planned by van der Stell in December 1682 and the idea was to send down divers on the Johanna but no confirmed reports have been found in the Archives.

MEXICAN PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Large, heavy paper documents of President Porfirio Díaz. Approximately 11"x17"; folder style, opening to twice their actual size. The documents give title to a silver mine in Mexico. Bear revenue stamps from 1901 and 1902. Many hand endorsements with signatures. Includes a large signature by Díaz.

General Porfirio Díaz was president of Mexico from 1876 to 1880. He then turned his office over to General Manuel Gonzalez (Díaz' trusted Commander, who defeated the forces of Lerdo at the Battle of Tecoac). Díaz then had the Constitution changed so as to permit himself to be re-elected for an indefinite number of times.

After 30 years of rule, a president usually assumes the role of dictator. Francisco Madero opposed Díaz in the 1910 election, but was defeated and forced to flee to the U.S.A. After the success of several revolutionary battles won by the forces of Madero, ageing Díaz abdicated and went into exile. He left on a steamer from Vera Cruz in May 1911, and died just a few years later in Paris on July 2, 1915.

These large, interesting Díaz documents are loaded with signatures, and they include handmade maps showing the actual location of the claim. No two papers are alike. They are extremely interesting and suitable for display purposes.

We have only a few dozen available, so it is suggested that you order as soon as possible.

CUNEIFORM TABLETS

Two thousand years before the time of Jesus . . . about the time that the Patriarch Abraham left his home in Ur to establish Judaism in the Holy Land . . . "documents were recorded by using cuneiform characters impressed in clay tablets in the land of Ur. These documents are each unique and give us a clear insight into life in the Middle East, four thousand years ago.

Superior is privileged to be the first to offer these genuine cuneiform tablets. They have been preserved, deciphered and authenticated by the experts in the Sterling Memorial Babylonian Collection Department at Yale University. Each cuneiform tablet is accompanied by a letter from Yale with a full description of the character found on that particular tablet.

Before you make up your mind, read about the tremendous historical significance of these 4,000 year old tablets.

The City

In the book of Genesis (11:31), it is written that "Terah took Abram, his son and Lot, the son of Haren, his son's son, and Sarai, his daughter-in-law, his son Abram's wife; and they went forth with them from Ur of the Chaldees to go into the land of Canaan. Having access by river and canal to the Persian Gulf, Ur was the natural headquarters of foreign trade. According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, "many hundreds of clay tablets show how foreign trade was organized."

The Historical Significance

In the opinion of some great thinkers, the invention of writing was the real beginning of civilization. It is so fundamental that one is astonished that it appeared so late (c. 3000 BC) in the development of mankind.

One of the earliest forms of writing was "cuneiform," its name derives from the fact that it was written by pressing wedge-shaped marks into clay. Originally pictographic in nature, the symbols soon lost any resemblance to the objects they were originally supposed to represent. Cuneiform writing was passed from the Sumerians to the Babylonians and Assyrians (e.g. at Ur) and on to the Hittites, the Persians, and other peoples.

The Tablets

The tablets, which we now offer, all document business transactions, and they range in length from about 1 to 2 inches and are of odd shapes and sizes. Each one has a unique inscription; we supply the summary made by the Yale scholars. These tablets document the delivery of grain . . . receipt of slave girls . . . record of grain rations . . . deliveries of lambs . . . record of workmen . . . delivery of gazelle . . . receipt of silver . . . oil allotments . . . account of cereals . . . receipt of rent . . . and so on.

In addition to the inscription summary, many tablets are dated to the year, month and sometimes the day, since this information is also contained in the inscription. Actual dated examples included "the third month, the 26th day in the fourth year of Amar-Sin's reign" (i.e. 2043 BC), and "the seventh month in the third year of Shu-Sin's reign" (i.e. 2034 BC).

Rare Opportunity

We don't know of anywhere in the world you can buy similar ancient tablets authenticated and interpreted by scholars . . . and certainly, should you locate one, it is most unlikely that it would be priced so moderately. Just $85.00! We have seen, on rare occasions, similar cuneiform tablets offered for $350 to $500!

Nothing you own or can own can be of such historical significance at such a low cost as these 4,000 year old cuneiform tablets from Ur, the home of the Biblical Patriarchs. An early order is recommended, since we have only a very limited supply! Telephone reservations will be accepted.

Each tablet will be accompanied by a certificate of authenticity provided by the BABYLONIA COLLECTION YALE UNIVERSITY and translated. This certificate is suitable for display or framing!

ANCIENT COIN

HOARD

PAEONIA HOARD SILVER TETRADRACHMS

The Kingdom of Paeonia became independent following the death of Perdikkas III of Macedon in 359 B.C. For the next 70 years the various kings issued coinage, mainly in tetradrachm size; these coins were later imitated by the Celtic tribes. These tetradrachms come from a region known in ancient geography as Paeonia, a land lying on the northern borders of Macedonia between the river Strymon and the river Axios. Very few historical facts are known about Paeonia, and although both Philip II and Alexander III, the architects of Macedon's greatness, led expeditions into the region, there can be little doubt that the hardy inhabitants of this rather inhospitable tract enjoyed a considerable independence, taking advantage of political confusions at the center of Macedonian power to stir up trouble for the royal house of Macedon. The mountain ranges in the region, especially the Pangaeian range in lower Macedon abounded with rich veins of gold and silver which had been worked by local tribesmen for some time; ready access to the materials for coinage coupled with military endeavors of great magnitude calling for large payments to troops and bribery payments to would-be hostile tribes account for the big issues of coins in this period.

The histories of the kings of Paeonia are lost in antiquity. Lykkeios (circa 359-340 B.C.) is known, apart from his extremely rare coins, for his participation in military alliances against Philip II of Macedon: the Paeonian cavalry of Patraos (circa 340-315 B.C.) played an important part in the Persian campaigns of Alexander III, although these were mercenary soldiers, and not led by their king.

The Choice Very Fine examples we offer were issued under King Patraos, circa 340-315 B.C., and display the laureate head of Apollo right / Armed warrior on horse prancing right, spearing fallen enemy.

NORMAL RETAIL IS $350.00 - $450.00 EACH.

Choice Very Fine Silver Tetradrachm $250.00

ORDER NO. 01-026

Nearly all the known pieces of this type come from the famous "Paeonian Hoard" uncovered in the mid 1960's & sold thru Sotheby and Company, London on Wednesday, April 16, 1969. These coins of course, trace their pedigree to that sale.

Those of you who are already members of our FDC Club know its many advantages (discounts, special offers, etc.). For those of you who don't, this is the service we provide:

We automatically send you all U.S. First Day Covers issued in the course of the year. This includes all regular, commemorative and airmail stamps, aerogrammes, postal cards and booklet panes. We also provide such covers as inauguration and other special event covers. This is done on an automatic basis, periodically 3-4 times a year. The cost is either deducted from your deposit or charged to your Master Card or Visa. There is no cost for the service - you just pay for the covers.

In addition, we extend our coverage to the covers of the United Nations, New York, Geneva and Austria. While the U.N. doesn't issue many covers (only 7-8 issues per year) they are quite attractive.

Over 300 collectors are presently members of our FDC Club. Why don't you join today?

The Story Of The

WRECK OF THE SANTIAGO

In Search of the SANTIAGO, Portuguese East-Indiaman.

On 1 April, 1585, at Belem near Lisbon on the right bank of the Tagus, an event took place which had become familiar and important in the life of the Portuguese nation, the departure of the great annual spice fleet. A solemn mass was celebrated in the Cathedral of San Jeronimus. Prayers were offered for the safety and success of the one thousand men and women to whose hands the king had entrusted the nation's prospects for prosperity in the next year or more. Final farewells were made, and the large crowd witnessed the departure for Cochin and Goa in India of the five merchantmen, led by the pride of the Portuguese maritime fleet, the nine hundred ton carrack Santiago. Their cargo consisted of the few marketable manufactures which Europe could offer — textiles, sweetmeats, religious jewellery — and chests of silver coins for the purchase of pepper to satisfy Europe's huge demand for the precious spice. The Spanish coins bore on the face the Cross of Jerusalem, symbol of the evangelizing zeal which went hand in hand with the desire for profit. On the obverse they carried the crest of Phillip II of Spain, also king of Portugal, the Low Countries, Sicily and Lombardy as well as various colonies, would-be king of England by his marriage to Mary Queen of Scots, convenor of the great Armada by which he tried to wrest his crown from Elizabeth 1, only to have his galleons sunk by the intrepid Drake and his men.

The Santiago and its companion ships had made an inauspicious start to what was always an arduous and dangerous journey. Delays in preparation had postponed their departure until perilously late in the year, exposing them to the risks of bad weather and failing winds. A storm drove the smaller ships to seek shelter, forcing the Santiago to proceed alone. However, the journey to the Cape of Good Hope was completed and she entered the Indian Ocean in mid-July. At this point the hazards caused by late departure became all too evident as it appeared that she would not have time take the planned route around the East of Madagascar and North to India before the Southeast Trade Winds stopped blowing, leaving her becalmed and helpless. The captain, Fernando de Mendoca, and the pilot, Gaspar Goncalves, decided to take the shorter but riskier route up the Mocambique Channel, between Madagascar and the African mainland.

Perhaps the worst peril they faced on this route was the terrible Shoals of Judea, today known as Bassas da India. From the mid-ocean abyss a single volcanic spout rises to within a few feet of the water's surface, forming a circular crater twenty miles in circumference. Invisible except at spring-low tide or when the strong winds and currents pile up ocean swells to crash with awesome force on the unexpected breakwater, it lurks just beneath the surface, overgrown and festooned with huge, jagged coral leges and heads which can break the backs even of modern steel ships.

The Portuguese knew that the reef lay somewhere at about 21½ degrees South latitude, and that running aground would mean certain death for most of the four hundred on board, with only two small lifeboats and hundreds of miles of open sea to the nearest land. However, on Monday 19 August the pilot, Goncalves, took a sighting of the sun with his astrolabe and calculated their position as somewhat North of the dreaded shoals. So, assuming that they had sailed safely past, he advised the captain to set full sail and hold a northerly course into the impenetrable gloom of the moonless night.

Mere hours later, with the moon still well below the horizon, the quiet of a sailing ship and the tranquility of her sleeping complement were shattered as the Santiago was driven under full sail onto the shoals. Jagged ledges of coral ripped open her lower decks, but still she ploughed on over fifty yards of reef onto the Southern shore of Bassas da India.

Who can envisage the scenes which ensued? Four hundred people in pitch darkness, expecting imminent death, groping and calling for loved ones and companions, screaming for a priest to hear confessions and grant absolution, scrambling to escape the horror of confinement in the mangled belly of the stricken ship only to reach the chaos and mass hysteria of the upper decks. All too late the moon arose, revealing the extent of the destruction and the hopelessness of their plight, marooned on a desolate, uninhabitable coral outcrop without even dry ground on which to set foot.

In the sterile light of the early morning one of the lifeboats was launched by the captain and some of the officers and aristocrats. They quelled the panic which broke out by swearing they were only going to reconnoitre the reef and look for a landfall. They never returned, choosing rather to head for the African coast in the hope of saving themselves. A second lifeboat was freed from the wreckage and repaired, and this time scenes of desperate savagery preceded its departure, as men and even women had to fight for a coveted berth. Five lifeboats were also improvised from wreckage and launched on the long journey. By these means ninety men managed to save themselves, surviving the sea journey as well as the threats of tropical disease and the hostility of local tribesmen before reaching the safety of a settlement. The remaining survivors, including thirty women and an unknown number of children, died horribly of exposure, thirst and drowning on the treacherous reef.

Part of a mid-16th century map, showing Madagascar, the east coast of Africa, and the Mozambique Channel in between. The Bassas da India (marked as Bayxos dos Judia) is almost in the centre. The map obviously has many serious errors, but was the best available at the time. It would almost certainly have been the map used on the SANTIAGO.

Their graves lay undisturbed except by the action of sea and weather for nearly four hundred years. Then in 1977 an adventurous yachtsman, Ernst Klaar and his family visited Bassas da India in the course of their global travels and stumbled fortuitously across a bronze cannon while walking the reef at low tide. Between 1977 and 1981 he quietly removed twelve cannon from the reef, where he also found some lead cannonballs, earthenware jars and a few badly corroded silver coins.

When this find was eventually publicised a spate of hopeful but illconceived expeditions of "treasure hunters" ensued, all of which ended in failure and disillusionment. At about that time we hear of the Santiago, and began to make tentative plans to go to Bassas da India. We all had years of diving experience as well as a keen and active interest in Marine Archeology, and we believed that only part of the Santiago had been found. Too few cannon had been recovered for a ship of her size, and there was also not enough silver for the flagship of a spice fleet. Our dream became realisable when we met Roger Farren in 1983 while on holiday. The idea immediately appealed to him and he offered to mount the expedition with us.

Thus it came about that we left Durban harbour on 12 April 1984 in his 56 foot motorcruiser, Arctic Tern, bound for Bassas da India. Once we had reached the reef and negotiated the difficult channel into the lagoon which has formed in the crater, we began to survey the reef. It took us two weeks to walk the twenty miles of the reef through kneedeep water. We found eleven wrecksites including the area which had been worked by Ernst Klaar. Then the real search began: Swimming in the pounding surf with scuba and snorkels, combing the reef, chopping away the living coral which entombed all the remains. Fruitless days passed and frustration, despondency and sheer exhaustion took their toll. Ours began to look like yet another luckless expedition.

Then finally, incredibly, when we had all but lost hope, we found the missing bronze cannon expertly cast and beautifully preserved, which led us to the last resting place of the Santiago. More than anything we were deeply conscious of the tragedy and human suffering which had accompanied her destruction, as we gridded the site with nylon lines and began our delicate and pain-staking excavations.

The excitement of those weeks is hard to reinvoke: finding intact the utensils which had been in daily use; the ladies' gold, silver and emerald jewellery; a perfectly preserved glass decanter; the very astrolabe with which Goncalves took his last, fatefully inaccurate sighting; trade beads of red agate; musket shot; a bronze mortar and pestle. But most exciting of all were the coins — hand-struck, roughly circular discs of fine silver, so ancient they were minted before it occurred to the Spanish mintmasters to date their coins (dating only commenced in 1586, the year after the loss of the Santiago). In relief on the reverse is the crusader's cross; on the obverse the quartered shield with the arms of the Hapsburgs. The inscription declares that Phillip is king of Spain and India by the grace of God. Many of the coins were corroded and worn, but a few had been wonderfully preserved.

Day after day we worked, systematically searching each block of our grid, labelling each artifact as it came out of the water and noting where it had been found. It was a rare privilege, working on such an old and historically significant site, rediscovering the past at first hand, deducing hitherto unknown details of Portuguese shipbuilding and seaboard life. And when it was done we left that desolate place, where human life is made to seem such a fragile thing, with the consolatory realisation that however tenuous our human existence, we leave our mark in the things which give us service and pleasure — things which last a few fleeting moments of history longer than we, and speak for us to those who come after.

THE SANTIAGO COINS

When Vasco da Gamma arrived in Calicut, India, in 1498 after completing his epoch-making journey in quest of "Christians and spices," he found that spices could only be purchased with gold or silver specie. So future Portuguese East-Indiamen carried chests of Spanish silver coins to trade for the precious commodity. Spanish coins were used because they were of finer silver and more precise weight than other coins of the time, and there great numbers of them in circulation, making them acceptable all over the world as currency.

These coins were minted by cutting roughly-circular discs, or planchets, from hand-beaten sheets of silver. The planchets would be trimmed to the correct weight and then hand-struck with iron dies to imprint their markings.

The coins from the Santiago date from the reign of Phillip II, King of Spain, Portugal, The Low Countries, Sicily and Lombardy as well as colonies in the Caribbean, Central Africa and India. The coins are in denominations of four and eight reales. The eight real piece is the famous Piece of Eight of pirate legend.

The reverse of the coins bears the Cross of Jerusalem, the banner of the Crusades, superimposed on the arms of Castile and Leon, provinces of pain. The obverse bears the coat of arms of the Hapsburgs, Phillip's ancestors. It is a quartered shield containing arms of Castile, Leon, Aragon, Granada, Naples, Sicily, Burgundy, Brabant, Flanders, Tyrol, Austria and The Low Countries. There is an inscription around the edges of both obverse and reverse in Latin, delaring that Phillip II is king of Spain and India by the grace of God. However the inscription is seldom ever complete on any coin, because of the crude way in which the coins were cut and struck.

The following 4 Reales and 8 Reales of Philip II are all from the treasure recovered from the wreck of the Portuguese East Indiaman "Santiago," which was wrecked August 19th, 1585 on the "Shoals of Judaea," which lies between the east coast of Africa and Madagascar. Each coin chows varying effects of submersion in salt water. They have been expertly cleaned and are quite presentable.

Levon I (1199-1218). On the eve of the Third Crusade, Pope Clement III asked Levon and the Armenian Catholicos Gregory IV to extend financial and military help to the arriving crusaders. Levon sent an ambassadorial escort to the armies of the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa who was approaching Cilicia after overcoming the hostility of the Byzantine Emperor Isaac II (1185-1195). Emperor Frederick had promised that he would reward Levon with a royal crown for his fidelity, but unfortunately the emperor was accidentally drowned in the river Calycadnus near Seleucia. Levon however continued to support the crusaders, his army was present at the siege of Acre (Medieval Judaea) and he joined Richard the Lionheart in the conquest of Cyprus. Ultimately, after Armenian delegations were sent to the new Holy Roman Emperor Henry VI and Pope Celestine III, in 1197 the Imperial Chancellor Conrad of Hildesheim left for the East with two crowns, one for Amalric of Cyprus and another for Levon of Armenia. King Levon's coronation took place on January 6, 1199 at Tarsus.

AZTEC
MONEY

In Mexico, prior to the minting of coins, the Aztec Indians used copper "Hoe Money" as a medium of exchange. Each piece is hand made of beaten copper. These copper "Hoes" were used as money up until the time of Cortez. We are pleased to offer these most interesting and historic pieces. Their shape (like a primitive "hoe") was probably indicative of their original use as cutting or scraping tools. Their exchange value was apparently about 4/5 real each. When one considers that one real per day would have been a working wage, the value placed on these unusual pieces is quite impressive.

The hoarding of these was a form of storing up wealth; the more a man possessed, the richer he was. We have just acquired a small hoard of completely intact specimens and now offer them for the first time.

HOARD of 3rd Century ANTONINIANI AURELIAN AD 270-275

Silvered Antoniniani (many different mints with obverse: radiate and cuirassed bust of the Emperor; various deities on reverse) in About Extremely Fine condition, with nearly full silvering intact.

One of the finest of Roman Emperors and certainly one of the empire's greatest generals, Aurelian in his relatively short reign, nearly restored the Roman Empire's frontiers to those of the mid AD 2nd Century and spent large sums of money better fortifying Rome. He rebuilt the magnificent temple to Helios, the sun god, of which his wife, Severina, was chief priestess.

Usually the thin coating of silvering on these late AD 3rd Century antoniniani is either worn away or has been eroded during the millenia through contact with acidic soil. This group of coins is a happy exception, possessing nearly all the silvering and exhibiting no actual wear. As with all ancients, they have irregular edges which reveal their uniqueness and method of striking, one by one.

$17.50 each
ORDER NO. 01-038

HOARD of SILVER DENARII AD 1st-3rd Century of Rome

Recently unearthed, these Silver Denarii formed the main denomination of coinage during the expensive era of the Roman Empire. In fact, until Great Britain decimalized their currency, the abbreviation of their pence (when introduced in the Middle Ages it was the Silver Penny) was always written as "d," alluding to the Roman Denarius. The obverse of the coins portrays the Emperor (or member of his family) while the reverse usually shows a deity, one of the many gods and goddess worshipped by the Romans.

We have many different Emperors and offer them, our choice of emperor, in the following categories:

- I. Average VG to Fine, Clear portraits $19.50

- II. Average About Very Fine $27.50

Shekels of the Old Testament of Tyre

Tyre was an ancient colony of Sidon which, by the time these coins were struck, surpassed Sidon in terms of wealth. The economy was derived from the sea: purple murex dye (the mythical discoverer of the dye was Melqarth portrayed on the obverse) and commerce. While the usual description of the reverse type is of an owl standing, it is possible that a hawk of Egyptian origin represented connotating royal power, as at this time dynasts ruled Tyre. Originally the name Tyre is derived from the Greek word for rock. While Tyre is today a peninsula, in ancient times Tyre was an island which was dominated by a magnificent temple dedicated to Melqarth. Hiram the master architect of King Solomon, was from Tyre, the principal and capital city of Phoenicia.

Phoenicia, Tyre, 360-332 B.C. Silver Didrachm or heavy (1 1/2) Shekel. Melqarth riding right on hippocamp holding bow; beneath, waves. Reverse: Owl standing to right with crook and flail under left wing; date in Phoenician numerals in field. Sear 5914, 5915.

Tyre is mentioned often in the Bible and it is with pleasure that we offer these important Biblical coins which are in much better than normally seen condition. Our coins were carefully selected from a recent small hoard (only 50 pieces) and show little actual wear. The normal fair market value of this rare silver didrachm is priced from $500 to $750 each (if ever offered at all).

We are proud to offer select, conservatively graded Choice Very Fine specimens. Take advantage of the bargain price of only ~~$395.00~~ each. $295-

Strike now while the opportunity exists! Once these handful of beauties are sold, there are no more!

Hoard of Superb, Virtually Mint State

Silver Antoniniani of Herennius Etruscus

Herennius Etruscus was the eldest son of Trajan Decius (emperor, AD 249-251) and Herennia Etruscilla; Etruscus was given the rank of Caesar (Prince) in AD 250. The reign of his father lasted only 22 months and was primarily concerned with repelling the invasion of the Goths to the North. Decius and his son, Herennius Etruscus, perished fighting the Goths in the battle of Abrittium, July of AD 251. However, this period is best remembered for the first widespread organized suppression of Christianity. These magnificent silver coins offered were issued in the midst of the first widespread persecution of Christians.

Nero's famous persecutions were local and short. But Decius issued an edict in January 250 ordering all citizens to perform a religious sacrifice in the presence of Roman officials, who issued a certificate witnessing the act. Large numbers of Christians defied the Emperor's edict, and as a result the Bishops of Rome, Jerusalem and Antioch were executed. However this brutal behavior by the government and the passive resistance of the Christian martyrs swayed public opinion, and shortly before Decius' death the persecutions were ended.

Christianity not only survived, but emerged stronger than ever. And something also survived from this brief period - a small hoard of coins of unbelievably high quality, miraculously preserved in virtually the same condition as when they were hand-struck 1,735 years ago!

Coins of Herennius Etruscus as Caesar have always been quite scarce; in hoards from the period they have normally been found in ratios of 1 coin portraying Herennius Etruscus to 50 coins of Trajan Decius. Very rarely have they been unearthed in such prime condition. Antoniniani struck during this period are often of low grade silver and are often found quite crystallized; these are happy exceptions and are of very good silver content. These beautiful, lustrous antoniniani are from a recent hoard and portray Herennius Etruscus on the obverse wearing the radiate or spiked crown, which denotes this denomination. A few different reverses are represented and the coins come fully identified.

ANCIENT EGYPTIAN AMULETS

These lovely little charms were used by Egyptians all over the empire. They were worn or carried by the living as powerful magic charms and buried with the dead as post-mortem aid. These amulets of Ancient Egypt are predominately of the New Kingdom Period and date around 1500 BC - 600 BC. These amulets are mostly of green or blue glazed faience and range in size from 15mm to over 35mm. Various golds and associated animals are represented as well as the Udjat Eye (Eye of Horus), Djed pillar, etc.

Amulets are very collectable and anyone with a taste for the miniature can truly appreciate these most satisfying examples of Ancient Egyptian art.

Some years ago we offered a rare 1815 half penny token which was discovered in a collection of early coinage purchased in Maine. The hoard consisted of some 200 pieces and these were sold by us several years ago at $27.50 each. Included with each piece was a copy of the documentation which accounts for the original discovery. The documentation cites that some 75 pounds of these tokens were originally discovered and sold to an attorney F.C. Saunders of Bedford Quebec.

It appears that in the early 1800's in Canada, a shortage of hard currency existed and tokens such as these were accepted for payment in amounts under 5c. They were also used as payment for postage. Today, tokens such as these are widely collected by numismatists and included with each token is a copy of a letter from the numismatist Renaud dated in July of 1927 where he is attempting to purchase the hoard from Saunders.

SMALL HOARD OF RARE HALF PENNY TOKENS LOCATED

Saunders wrote to the famous numismatist Breton who advised that the tokens were acceptable for exchange although if the condition of the tokens was high grade, these would be worth a premium which he offered to purchase. The copy of this document is also included with each token.

We have located just 50 of these mint state (slightly toned) copper tokens. These were uncovered in one of our vaults which was being cleared for our upcoming move to our new headquarters. We believe that these tokens should be sold at $37.50 although we will offer them at the last price they sold at for just $27.50 which includes copies of all documentation mentioned. Just 50 of these are available so we suggest a prompt phone call to reserve your order.
